The sites listed below are just a few that can help you discredit fake news so that you don't continue the cycle of misinformation:

Snopes.com - Snopes started with just researching urban legends and has become the definitive Internet reference source for urban legends, folklore, myths, rumors, and misinformation.

PolitiFact.com - Nonpartisan, Pulitzer Prize-winning site that ranks elected officials and others with their "truth-o-meter" ranking them from True to Pants on Fire.

TinEye.com - TinEye is an image search and recognition site that can be used to reverse image search tracking images to their origins and detecting photo editing.

MediaBiasFactCheck.com - Media Bias/Fact Check (MBFC News) is an independent online media outlet. MBFC News is dedicated to educating the public on media bias and deceptive news practices.

FactCheck.org - Nonpartisan, nonprofit “consumer advocate” for voters that aims to reduce the level of deception and confusion in U.S. politics. They monitor the factual accuracy of what is said by U.S. politicians.

FlackCheck.org - Flack Check is the political literacy companion site to FactCheck.org. The site provides resources designed to help viewers recognize flaws in arguments in general and political ads in particular.

WashingtonPost.com/News/Fact-Checker/ - Washington Post has created this site and accompanying column in the Sunday print edition of The Washington Post to “truth check” the statements of political figures.

OpenSecrets.org - Nonpartisan, independent and nonprofit, the Center for Responsive Politics is the nation's premier research group tracking money in U.S. politics and its effect on elections and public policy.
